

WITNESSES ARE BEING HEARD IN CAMINETTI CASE

Jury Completed and Statement
For the Government is Made by Theodore Roche, Special Counsel.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—A jury was sworn, the government stated its case and the taking of testimony was begun Thursday in the first of the Diggs-Caminetti trials. The case was called Tuesday morning in the United States district court, on an indictment charging violation of the Mann act—popularly known as the white slave law.

Theodore Roche, of special counsel for the government, set forth boldly and tersely in the closing hour of the afternoon, stating what the prosecution would attempt to prove. It would be shown by documentary evidence and the testimony of witnesses, he told the jury:

1.—That Marsha Warrington and the other girl had been frightened by Maury I. Diggs and F. Drew Caminetti, married men with children, one 23 and the other 27 years old, into leaving Sacramento, test a scandal explode and criminal prosecutions follow.

2.—That marriage had been promised after the two husbands have divorced their wives.

3.—That Caminetti raised the money for the trip from Sacramento, to Reno, Nev., and that Diggs bought the transportation and paid the Pullman fares.

4.—That the four traveled as married couples occupying the same state room on a night train.

5.—That on arriving at Reno, on the morning of March 11, 1913, they registered at a hotel as married and occupied adjoining rooms, with a bath between.

6.—That Diggs hired a four-room bungalow, paying rent in advance for a month and representing to the agent that the party were from Los Angeles and intended to spend six months in Reno.

7.—That all four lived in the bungalow for the three days before they were arrested. Diggs and Marsha Warrington occupying the front room and Caminetti and Lola Norris a rear room.

8.—That Diggs was in his night clothes when he opened the back door of the bungalow to the officers who arrested him on the morning of the 14th and that the officer waited in the living room while the two girls dressed.

9.—That after the return to Sacramento Diggs had written to Marsha Warrington from Berkeley, adjuring her to keep up her courage and that all would well if she would remember what he had told her, particularly if she was firm in denying that there had been any improper relations between them.

There was but scant time for taking testimony before adjournment. The case had been outlined, Roche, introduced Diggs' marriage license and identified it by George D. Leslie, a statistician.

J. P. Stevens, vice president of a Sacramento bank, identified Diggs' handwriting on checks and notes as the same as that shown him in which a letter to Marsha Warrington was penned. Cross examination did not shake the witnesses and objections to the introduction of their testimony were overruled.

Business Men on Jury.
The jury is composed entirely of business men, active or retired, and includes one retired liquor dealer and one friend of a former partner of Diggs, sr. This friend said, he was sure this partnership would not influence his verdict and his assurance was satisfactory to the court.

Ten of the jurors are married and eight of them have children. Of those who are fathers, it is said, they have daughters. Nothing in the usual examination to which the talesmen were subjected indicated the tactics of the defense.

Just before court adjourned, F. J. Peck, a real estate dealer, from Reno, was on the stand. In cross-examination the defense sought to show that the bungalow the two couples occupied during their stay in Reno was not on the outskirts of the city and had been rented with no view to sequestration and concealment.

"I don't see," interposed Judge Van Fleet, "how it can make any difference to this case if they went there openly or secretly and clandestinely. Unless the government can show that they went there for the purposes prohibited by the Mann act, the case is a failure. Even if the women were public prostitutes, if the defendant procured their transportation and accompanied them there for immoral purposes, the case of the government would stand."

EVERYBODY, EVEN MINISTER, SWORE

Willie Lafuze a Lip Reading Went to See a Movie Picture But Will Never Go Again.

CONNEERSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 8.—Willie Lafuze went to a picture show Wednesday night and says he will never attend another, although he has always been fond of the movies. The reason for Willie's resolution is the fact that he is deaf and is a "lip reader."

Willie, who is 15 years old, and has been brought up carefully, said that in the scene, where the "leading lady" appeared surrounded by a crowd of beautiful girls who were supposed to be planning an assault on a bachelor's heart, the actresses used words which he thought women never said.

To add to Willie's mortification, he said, the "minister" who to every other person in the theater was wrestling with a doctrinal problem, to him, was "swearing a blue streak." The boy says he frequently has been surprised at the inconsistency of the language of the "movies" but seldom has "heard" anything offensive. Willie is an expert at "lip reading" and can carry on a conversation so glibly that strangers would hardly guess his deafness.

LITTLE PROGRESS ON THE TARIFF MEASURE

Grape Juice Diplomacy and Sale of Nothing is the Present Plan According to Sen.
Sherman.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Democrats made slow progress Thursday in advancing the new tariff bill. An opposing speech by Sen. Warren, republican, a long and sharp debate between Senators Stone and Lippitt over the making of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law, and an attack by Sen. Sherman upon provisions of the metal schedule took up much of the day.

Sen. Sherman opposed the 15 per cent rate on cast wheels in the bill, saying it meant ruin to American manufacturers for the benefit of those in England and Germany. Reviewing exports of wheels from the country last year, he said:

"Not a dollar's worth was exported to China in 1912 and it is reasonable to suppose that not a dollar's worth will be exported in 1913. Instead of dollar diplomacy in the far east with thousands of dollars worth of goods sold there we now have grape juice diplomacy and the sale of nothing." Sen. Stone brought up the question of who furnished the facts for the cotton schedule of the Payne-Aldrich bill. He quoted at length from a speech in May, 1909, of the late Sen. Dilliver, in which it was charged that Sen. Lippitt—not in public life—had come to congress representing the New England cotton men with the statement that they wanted no increase in duties and had gone away with material increases.

Sen. Lippitt said the democrats were acting like "cuttlefish" and that his expose Wednesday of the cotton schedule in the present bill made them anxious to discredit him.

Sen. Stone said the dominant note of the party in power was "down with the farmer."

He Admits Quincy, Mass., Has a Fine
Clerk But Ignores All Other Questions.

QUINCY, Mass., Aug. 8.—Joseph G. Cannon sat in the tonneau of an automobile in the city square Thursday and let City Clerk Crane, who is also president of the Quincy Historical society, tell him all about John Quincy Adams, whose bones rest in the old stone church here.

Though a good listener, when, in turn, he was questioned about his views on the Mexican situation, the lobby investigation and other affairs at Washington, the former speaker of the house of representatives only tilted his cigar a point to the windward and with twinkling eye, said, "Say, boys, you've got a fine city clerk here."

Later he visited the birthplaces and the tombs of the former presidents and then spent some time in the "Dorothy Q" house where John Hancock made love to Miss Quincy, seeing the parlor wall paper that had been brought from Paris for the Hancock-Quincy wedding but which was never used for that occasion owing to the rapidity with which Hancock had to move from the place to escape pursuing British soldiers. Then he went to Marshfield and visited the house of Daniel Webster.

"Uncle Joe" will continue his sight-seeing tour of New England Friday.

SEES FIRST BREACH IN ENGLISH POLICY

Decision to Place Naval Cruisers at Bermuda Causes Much Discussion in Germany.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—In the decision of the British government to station several naval cruisers at Bermuda, Capt. Persius, the naval expert of the Tageblatt, sees the first breach in Lord Fisher's policy of concentrating every available ship of the British navy in home waters and an indication of the waning of the tension Anglo-German rivalry of the past decade.

From this point of view, Capt. Persius finds the action of the British admiralty of more importance to Germany than to the United States. He says Germany also may take similar steps of deconcentration. He believes that in general the decision was dictated more by the desire to show the British flag than by actual necessity.

The Taeglicher Rundschau Friday published an editorial referring to the possibility of Germany modifying its naval program in view of the acceleration of construction of three battleships of the British navy recently announced by Winston Spencer Churchill, the German admiralty, however, says there is no question of such action.
